

Positioning Yourself and Your Research for Success with the National Institutes of Health

Agency Engagement Webinar Series

Webinar Series Details

Webinar Dates & Times:

March 15, 2024

March 22, 2024

March 29, 2024

All webinars will be held from 12-1pm ET

McAllister & Quinn Presenters:

BreeAnn Brandhagen, PhD

Kelsey Hassevoort, PhD

Managing Directors

Research Universities Practice

Questions?

Please contact Pamela Clarke,

pamela.a.clarke@Howard.edu

Learn More and Register:

Use the links below for each session

Webinar Overview:

Interested in applying for NIH funding but not quite sure where to start? Join McAllister and Quinn staff as they lead this three-part webinar series designed to prepare investigators to successfully navigate this agency and craft competitive NIH proposals. This virtual meeting will be informative for faculty looking to build their foundational knowledge of the NIH grants process and understand best practices for proposal preparation.

Session One (Mar. 15)

Introduction to the NIH

This session will provide an overview of NIH organization and funding mechanisms. Attendees will learn how to use NIH tools to identify funding opportunities and connect with program officers. Registration Link

Session Two (Mar. 22)

Crafting a Successful Proposal

This session will focus on best practices for developing the key components of a successful NIH proposal. Attendees will learn how to tailor their proposal to align with NIH criteria. Registration Link

Session Three (Mar. 29)

Navigating the Peer Review Process

This session will walk through the NIH peer review process. Attendees will learn how to respond to reviewer comments and use reviewer feedback to refine their proposal. Registration Link